Flynn, being director of DIA under the Obama administration, knew that Clinton's state department and the Office of Net Assessment under James baker in DoD were actively supporting the coup to remove Erdogan in Turkey. On the surface, it was portrayed as an attempt to remove a "pro-Islam hardliner". In Reality, they just wanted to remove Erdogan to place Gullen (who had supported the Clinton Foundation to the tune of millions over decades) as the President of Turkey. Flynn, via his work in Turkey, tipped off Erdogan that the coup attempt was coming which is how it was readily quashed. This is why they tried to move against Flynn and Flynn Jr. for FARA violations regarding their work in Turkey. it fucked up their plan.

They wanted Gullen in because he would have pushed Turkey towards the EU at a faster pace than Erdogan and would have permitted the EU and US to work turkey into their overall LNG strategy.

and if you're interested, there's countless news articles from MSM sources dating back to the early days of the Bush administration that were questioning the ties between Clinton and Gullen, as people within the Bush administration were concerned with Gullen's funding of what more or less appeared to be Madrassas within the US. It was squashed because Gullen hired a PR firm that managed to portray him as a "moderate" muslim, when in reality, he's just as much a hardliner as Erdogan, the only difference is he was more willing to take dirty money from the EU/US.

Yes, but the pipeline was natural gas, not oil. It was supposed to go from Qatar through SA, Iraq, Syria and Turkey before going into the EU at Bulgaria. Assad refused to allow that one through and instead agreed to one from Iran backed by Russia. The idea was to wean Europe off Russian natural gas. Oil is easily transported by tanker, but natural gas really does have to go by pipeline.

Will Biden go after Assad again if he ends up in the White House?

I'd imagine so yes, Eastern Europe will increasingly find itself at odds with the EU as the EU moves to dispense with European identity more and more. Eastern Europeans and Western Europeans are essentially different people, and what is popular or acceptable to western europeans, who have been domesticated over several centuries, will not be viewed as acceptable to Eastern Europeans.

This is ultimately why places like Poland, Hungary, Russia, and increasingly, Japan are viewed poorly by the global establishment. Their people cling to cultural traditions and norms to the extent that some of the long term plans NGO's like the EU have in mind will never make it in those countries.

The other half of it, which resulted in Flynn's forced retirement, is that he knew that the CIA annex in Benghazi was allowed to be burned/torched to hide the fact that it was being used as a hub for arms shipments from Eastern Europe and Texas into Syria, most of which were going to factions aligned with Al Qaeda and ISIS. Flynn saw the resurgence and rise of ISIS as an increasing threat to the US and was concerned that the weapons the US was providing them in an attempt to push back Assad/Russia would end up being turned on US forces a decade later, much in the way that the Mujahadeen did.

They had a half dozen reasons why Flynn was persona non-grata.

This is why it was so fucking obvious, they did too much to ensure the win. The late night dumps of 95-100% votes distributed to Biden played a role in leaving data trails that the mathematicians could use against them. They simply went overboard and it became too obvious what they did

Who allowed it?

Sad reality: The people. They became complacent and are too interested in temporary pleasures and consumerism to notice the extent to which big companies and government are aligning behind the scenes in ways which would deeply concern anyone. And it crosses party lines. Neo-Conservative and Liberterian support for endless free market capitalism has been as dangerous in the end as Liberal/Leftist support of big government.

People are complacent. They don't ask questions. They don't think critically. They just consume. That's the reality.

it's a LARP is it??

<https://dailystormer.su/uk-vaccine-minister-says-vaccine-certificate-will-be-required-to-enter-a-bar-or-movie-theater/>

>UK: Vaccine Minister Says Vaccine Certificate Will Be Required to Enter a Bar or Movie Theater

>The UK's newly appointed vaccine minister, Nadhim Zahawi, has suggested that people will have to show they've received the Covid vaccine if they wish to return to normal life and the resumption of social activities.

>Zahawi was asked by the BBC on Monday if it will become virtually impossible to do anything without the vaccine, and the minister responded that people should expect pressure from service providers to demonstrate that they have been vaccinated.

>He suggested that people who refuse to get vaccinated could face continued restrictions, potentially preventing them from attending bars, cinemas, restaurants and sports venues if they cannot provide proof down the line that they have been inoculated against the coronavirus.

>However, Zahawi, whose new role will see him oversee the rollout of the Covid-19 vaccine in the UK, made clear that getting vaccinated will be voluntary – although he strongly encouraged it, as he believes it will be good for the community and the country if people receive the jab.

>Another British government official is talking about using the pre-loaded app they forced onto your phone to track your every movement as a way to monitor the unvaccinated and restrict their movement.

>Baroness Harding, who is responsible for the existing NHS Test and Trace app service, recently told her team that it may be turned into a kind of 'Covid-19 passport' that displays people's inoculation status.

>The Department for Transport is also reportedly considering stamping the actual passports of individuals who have been vaccinated to show they are safe to travel, avoiding delays and border crossing issues when international travel picks up again next year.

Remember the cut scene from Metal Gear Solid 2 about "creating context"?

There's a reason that meme gets posted here over and over again. The people behind all this, they unironically think they are the good guys. They think that by "creating context" they can convince 195 different countries and endless different cultures and religions and tribes that they know what's best for the entire world. They view some dystopian notion of "peace and justice" as the ultimate objective even if it's at the expense of the world's soul. To that extent though, i'm preaching to the choir here. You guys already understand why globalism is at it's core immoral. It doesn't celebrate diversity of culture or thought, it eliminates it. It creates a monoculture and an intellectual monolith of sorts.

And this place? Why do they hate this place? Because unironically this place is the only place in the world, spare a few hyper-autists like me that have managed to fly under the radar within the system, that understand the actual battle ground on which this war- if you can call it one- is being fought. The weapons aren't bullets, they're memes.

Most everything governments, think tanks, and NGO's know about memetics, they learned from careful scrutiny of websites like 4chan and YTMND. From the Dancing Baby to Pepe, alphabets, think tanks, tech conglomerates, all recognized the ability to shape consciousness itself via memetics.

Correct.

With the wind down of the GWOT there wasn't going to be a need for the massive intelligence infrastructure that's been built out. The system is beyond bloated, and Trump getting us out of wars not only meant a reduction in military hardware purchased (and in turn, less profit for the military industry) but even more so, it men fewer jobs for analysts in NOVA, and fewer big money contracts for companies like AECOM, etc.

Generally correct. Science is supposed to be a process of trial and error, and challenging findings. Instead, you have a situation now where questioning the accepted is not only looked down upon, it's not allowed, and if you do it, your findings aren't even allowed to be posted. The party that calls everyone science deniers have unironically parted with the very concept of science and have effectively replaced it with dogma, which is ironic given they are mostly self-identified atheists.

>doesn't china have deeper strategic interests in africa beyond simple economic integration? belt and road being largely an excuse for a transcontinental energy supply chain they don't need to rely on russia for - that was my understanding

Energy is part of it but more important is raw materials. As alternative energy becomes more prominent and battery technology becomes more common in more and new applications, rare earth metals will become of increasing strategic value. China (and the US) both view Africa as a potential resource of rare earth metals, along with other natural resources. China also views Africa as a potential pool of cheap labor. As the Chinese middle class becomes the chinese upper class, they effectively will make Africa what we made China in the 90's. Chinese firms and workers will become a managerial class to production lines that will be outsourced to what amounts to slave labor in Africa, though China is finding this more difficult than they thought it would be, for obvious reasons kek

Should be rather obvious. Remainers within the UK government made sure his extradition hearing was after the Election because they did not want him extradited back to the US so long as Trump was President as it's more or less accepted that Trump would Pardon him. His hearing is set for the first week of January, even if extradition is granted, he wont be back in time for Trump to Pardon him once all the proceedings are through. The UK purposely dragged their feet to keep him in the EU and off US soil until Trump is gone.

If he does get extradited under a Biden administration, he ends up going to jail forever most likely under gag order or something.

So it's basically Neocolonialism, then? So an alliance between Brazil and the US would make sense in the global stage but it's kinda difficult since both countries are competitors in many sectors, especially agriculture. I have the feeling the US wants to fuck the EU and China not letting them grow strong in South America but at the same time they kinda undermine south americans a bit to maintain control. It feels like Monroe Doctrine 2.0.

That's why the brazilian media keeps saying the relationship between Bolsonaro and Trump has been useless for brazilian interests in the long term. I'm pretty sure Bolsonaro thought things would go differently with Trump when he took office. Aside from memes and a few military contracts, the relationship between BR and US has been underwhelming.

He promised one additional dump before the election and never followed through. Then theres a whole bunch of schizo shit (some weird Wiki posts circa those days that had misspellings that added up to "Help him"). My thing is, he was always relevant and over night, stopped being so. Some people who knew his situation better claimed that he was signing a PGP key with regularity to confirm proof of life which he apparently stopped doing that month (which is likely where the theory stems from, I dont know shit about the PGP key thing but I do find it odd that Wikileaks fell off the earth in relevance)

The problem is the procurement process has become a cesspool of corruption, but more so, it involves contracts for tech services, ISR, foreign construction projects, etc and not so much just companies building American military hardware.

You have to understand China's interest in rare earth metals isn't so that it can design alternative power sources to meet it's own needs. It's interested in them for military applications sure, but more importantly, it's interested in selling those raw materials and alternative power sources back to western nations (specifically the US) at a markup. US liberal politicians will push alternate energy and issue grants for it, and the recipients in turn will use the grants to buy the end product from the PRC.

One thing I don't understand about the WEF and their plans is that on the surface they seem to be addressing some valid points, tech being out of control and governments not being able to catch up, wanting to not have any big "losers" by implementing UBI or whatever.. etc.. Why is there this obsession with BLM and social justice bullshit that just distracts from the technocratic agenda? Wouldn't it be easier to roll out if they didn't create so much mistrust of the establishment and media?

>Why would Trump not set up a sting operation to catch the technological vote rigging? He obviously knew they would do it, aren't there patriotic people in the military who could be activated to do it without the higher ups knowing about it?

you make this sound much easier than it is op doesn't think trump will win, I've talked to other analysts (maybe not insiders, but it's all a larp, potentially) who think he has a decent shot at pulling this thing out via scotus. I think it's a long shot personally but the logic is really that because most of these corrupted election efforts happened on the level of individual states and their individual government/partisan infrastructures - something trump and the federal government generally can't really reach into - the best option would be to let them blow their load and use the ensuing evidence of that having been done to litigate the result proper

now you can argue that there were better ways of handling this but neither of us have a full understanding of the resources trump and his loyalists had in dealing with this situation

>What do the elites gain in a timeline where a third to half the US population thinks the President is illegitimate on day 1 which will increase as the economy implodes & he implements unpopular policies?

most people won't do shit, most people will accept the bread and circuses as usual. yes, including the part of the population that thinks biden is illegitimate. if the Dems win in georgia and control the senate, and frankly even if they don't, there'll likely be federal stimulus payouts and the country will be eased out of pandemic hysteria just enough to let the economy go back to business as usual-ish, with the new technocratic social safety net implemented

advertising is a component of social engineering - it's a greater propaganda tool than narrative control via running the news operations.

a large number of the people working in the media are trained intelligence operatives. they are there to shape reality for the public and draw up a vision of the world for them. they understand that people typically only know the world outside of their immediate social circle from media. the average person is living in a Truman Show constructed reality - an open and stated goal of intelligence services going back many decades.

Advertising rides on top of that. The "News" creates the outside world for the viewer and advertising penetrates into their local social world. This is most effective on women because they are more naturally oriented toward close-in groups and their immediate surroundings. They want to ensure their group is maintaining pace with all other groups and advertising provides a window into what "other" local social groups are doing. It should be obvious how easy it is to manipulate people this way.

Blue-pilled fags like to think that what we need is a free version of this same model, one that supports OUR views and doesn't censor and all that other faggotry. They don't get that this is fine with the people running it - the social engineering is baked into the medium. The entire system of delivering messaging this way is what they're after and if they have to change the specific messaging to suit particular cultural views they can and will do that as needed.

As long as you're still engaging with the world according to their model, they are winning. You need to cut advertising out of your life, cut news media out of your life, cut television shows and movies out of your life. You need to engage with the world as it is, not through an intermediary.

There is a lobby to make the amazon forest profitable because of the huge amount of minerals in the soil there but the left wingers have made it virtually impossible to explore the territory because we have one of the fiercest environmental legislation in the world. Not only that, China needs a huge supply of basedbeans and the landowners are pushing for deregulation to expand their crops. Most of the agrobusiness is pro-Bolsonaro, so his Environmental Minister is super pro-market aswell. Thing is, europenas were using NGO's to "help" indigenous people and started stealing patents there for the big pharma. The military tried to stop this but our past presidents didn't do shit. They uncovered a plan to use the indigenous people to balkanize the amazon region and turn it into an international corridor under UN administration. Basically a foreign invasion backed up by globalists. So right now Bolso is basically saying...if the amazon is going to be exploited, at least let's do it ourselves and not give it to euros for free.

right, that's why I think the potency of this disaffected other half of the country is entirely contingent on whether the consensus powers in us government can pull off congressional stimulus and state level undoing of all the various restrictions within a month of biden's inauguration, let's say. legitimacy is great and all but if everyone's got money in their pockets most people won't care too much how it got there. I think it's kind of an open question what exactly happens if the republicans hold onto the senate and decide to stonewall further stimulus, for example, but I think that's less likely than the senate going along with stimulus just to give their constituents something material

Fuck. I think it is "wonderful" that all of this is taking place just to secure energy by isolating the Russians, while it would be easier in principle to bribe certain people in Kremlin and buy out Russia by getting rid of Putin. Why in the fuck would elites go to these lengths for a shitty gas pipeline when all you have to do is to break Russia. Except because they cannot or someone who genuinely controls things above government level would not allow it. These events encompass a lot more than just energy security and profiteering.

Putin really is the gatekeeper and under him Russia will never be for sale. It is perhaps the best inconsequential event that comes out from the entire episode OP describes here. This gives credence to the fact that there is a massive split between globalist and nationalist jews. As someone with a relative who holds an Israeli passport and keeps going on non stop about how people like Soros will never set their foot in their homeland because they are traitors, it is finally making sence. What is even more bizarre is that the "big bad russhans" live in everyone rent free. So the question is this - is it a case of land grab for resources or is it because they could never conquer Russia yet?

>immediate hot civil war

that will take four more years to happen. the high-level view is this:

the world is controlled by an empire that is based in the EU. the Americans are trying to extract themselves from that empire, but the empire is fighting to the death to keep it, because America being independent greatly reduces their power and influence in the world.

Within America there is a large population segment that is more citizen to the Empire than to America, they just happen to live in this geography. They will be responsible for the civil war as they are loyalists to the empire while the American move away from it already has too much momentum to stop for long.

Yep, checked. Someday? Anyone with an IQ over 115 already realizes this. All the SJW identitypol shit was hatched at the tail end of Occupy because the establishment- from the banks, to the Obama admin, to google, feared more than anything an alliance between Occupy and the Tea party. SJWism effectively prevented it from becoming a unified populist movement, instead occupy ended up looking like a bunch of trannies which prevented anyone right of center from even recognizing that they were right about the role corporations were taking on.

The US, EU, and PRC are all part of the empire. Each plays a different role. And you're correct. The US becoming more like Russia and stepping back from that order would destroy the EU's ability to influence world events, as they effectively rely on the US as it's strongman.

As for civil war, it won't go down how anyone thinks it will go down. It will be tit-for tat and most of it will be chalked up as random violence/crime by the media to keep it from escalating.

Also, keep in mind the Earth is about to enter the Great Solar Minimum. From 2020 to 2053 if I'm not mistaken, the Earth is expected to endure a mini Ice Age and the crops in the Northern Hemisphere will suffer the most of it's consequences. Rivers will remain frozen for extended periods of time and crops will die. There will be a huge amount of food demand everywhere and tropical countries will have to supply a lot more food to avoid famines around the world. Brazil is expected to be the biggest food producer by then, so you are going to see a lot of forests going down and "accidental fires" for years to come. This is not a coincidence.

They're n00bs and are unfamiliar with information warfare.

The best way to manipulate a group like /pol/ is to provide a large amount of accurate and true information, speak their lingo to an extent, and pass yourself off as frustrated and venting, just someone "stuck on the inside." The key here is you are establishing an authority voice.

Next, you insert the nuggets you actually came here to spread. In this case the main nuggets is that "trump won't win." You're watching a standard demoralization play. Here we have a knowledgeable person claiming insider info who is pretty sure this won't work out. So if you've bought in from the other info they're sharing, you're likely to carry that nugget with you.

This is jewish propaganda technique. If you read through all the posts you'll find two or three other nuggets - the way to spot them is to look for how they don't flow smoothly with the rest of the comment. The person is on a topic but needs to insert their nugget at some point and usually it reads as a little bit shoe-horned.

Keep in mind that OP may not even be aware that they are doing this. Useful idiot puppets are the best for social influence - they believe they have full and accurate information because they trust THEIR authorities and so they confidently propagandize-downward without even realizing it.

As I stated in my first reply to OP - he's still pretty bluepilled and is missing some major foundational understanding necessary to evaluate the movements and actions of the players. DESU, he sounds young and overconfident, probably got told how smart he was in college.

well we would see it that way because /pol/ in the 2016 cycle attempted to be - and ultimately was - a major information distributor. everyone has the bias of their perspective. now, that said, the media stranglehold on information has ABSOLUTELY gotten weaker in the last 4 years. it's not shattered, but it's certainly more tenuous. half of the country does not believe a single word that comes out of national news, that's an incredible thing is a little too far. inquiring minds can come to that conclusion rationally without being spoonfed the curated version of insider knowledge. I don't think trump's going to pull this out either and I'm certainly not an insider, my perspective is just hinging on the human beings involved that would have to really show up bigtime to give trump the win, and I can't see them summoning the will to do it. would love to be wrong though

This is most effective on women because they are more naturally oriented toward close-in groups and their immediate surroundings. They want to ensure their group is maintaining pace with all other groups and advertising provides a window into what "other" local social groups are doing. Interesting factoid: the Jewish rabbis insist that the Noahide laws prohibit idolatry, that the proper punishment thereof is beheading, that being a Christian is idolatry and therefore would be worthy of beheading...

> And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

When the traitors are revealed as traitors, these people will not care. They'll finally drop the pretense and will openly admit that they think it's time we throw out that old-and-busted Constitution thing and become a more MODERN society, like Europe! If you can't figure out that the script was written in Europe by now it's because you don't know Europe. because OP is wrong. Erdogan's threat to the globohomo empire is in having a strong, independent nation large enough to throw its weight around. As the USA pulls out of the international empire they also take down their economic and military guarantees around the world. Certain nations, like Turkey, become much more powerful in that environment because there is no USA to tell them not to push their neighbors around. Erdogan is unapologetically opposed to globohomo doctrine and as such he represents a possible example for others to follow. They are fighting a rear-guard war since 2016 - Trump's election was a severe blow and they're reeling. If they can't take him out now they're goose is cooked, which is why you see them putting it all on the line with this ham-fisted coup.

I knew that the middle class would die at the time. NAFTA was the beginning and then MFN for China finished off the middle class. When you lose all your industry, you lose a lot of middle class jobs, both blue and white collar. Clinton was an evil son of a bitch and those who advised him were worse. Clinton even convinced himself that those jobs could be replaced with day trading. Unbelievable.

The Bushes were scum and of course Obama was clueless. That people actually believe that those guys were good presidents shows just how the MSM works to convince people that something right in front of them isn't real.

NYC is far less "liberal" than most believe. NYC is all about money, even the foreigners. If you fuck with people's money in NYC they will turn against you. Giuliani had the local celebrity and he actually lost the first time. The first nigger mayor was a disappointment so four years later Rudy was able to go at him with a "see, I told you so" campaign. He was able to be effective within corrupt NYC politics because of his history in prosecuting corruption in the area for the previous 15 years.

I wasn't thinking of nyc as especially liberal circa '94, just as an unholy den of vice and avarice, and your position integrates a giuliani win into that model. interesting then that nyc's position as a central, moneyed interest might make it less or maybe just differently corruptible when compared with other majority "minority" cities without those financial predicates

Is China really that bad? From what I understand their one-party system is a decent approximation of a meritocracy, with able and competent leaders rising to the top. Over 80% of Chinese people have faith in their leadership and are optimistic about their future. China's Belt and Road Initiative is building infrastructure around the globe without the crippling debt service imposed previously by outfits like the IMF and World Bank, and so they are building up a huge amount of good will from the global south. Would love to hear your thoughts on this.

>climate change

that's already been pushed off to the side. climate change was turned into a death cult a few years back, as you may recall. this was particularly acute in Europe (Americans have largely rejected climate change because duh). The death cult was priming the pump for the Corona operation. These two things are inexorably linked - the fear of death in the "68 generation" is what is driving social policy right now.

London is performing a balancing act that involves simultaneously taking the Caucuses from Russia and completing Brexit without losing its regime. With the US in the midst of election turmoil and potentially leaving the ME almost entirely, it looks like London could rise to the position of being Russia's most powerful rival in the general region, picking up on the US imperial strategy alongside Israeli globalists. What are the odds that London would take this direction? In my mind it boils down to how much influence Soros has in London, which is hard to approximate. And furthermore I do not think that the Russians would be happy with London muscling into the power vacuum that could potentially be left from US withdrawal.

This is another reason that the past administration and the EU wanted a pro-EU regime in Ankara.

If the US decided to no longer be Europe's defacto army, Turkey, if in the EU, would very quickly become it's muscle. It's already the second largest force in NATO.

The problem is that Erdogan generally views Russia favorably or at least neutrally, so as long as he's in charge, Turkey isn't going to fight Russia to get Germany cheaper Gas.

star trek isn't left in some political compass test shit, it's globalist and utopian, it envisions an ever-growing world (galactic) order unified by a single purpose. if you don't see how closely that mirrors modern projects in the EU you're mad or blind

You would need to remove illegal immigrants, both those that come by plane and overstay their visas and those cross the borders illegally. Then you need to throw out the H-1Bs and their families. The kids may be born here and become anchor babies, and it's too easy to convert an H-1B visa to permanent residence. None of them know or respect our heritage and culture. Witness the anti-gun situation in NOVA. I'm not a gun person myself, but I don't want unreasonable restrictions on others. Guns aren't just a weapon, they're a potent cultural symbol, and all the naturalized citizens want to ban them to stamp out traditional culture and because they're scared to death of something which they don't understand.

I'm a little rusty. But the revolutionary war was fought by a percentage of the total population of the country. The driving factor was communication between those like minded, albeit diverse thinking, people. (Committees of correspondence).

The jolly green glow nigger says "technology bad". But I think we can use their systems against them. It's the communication that's the problem. Because everyone is technically a boomer to a certain degree, any communication tech would have to be simple enough for everyone to use and accessible by everyone. I imagine a 4chan with avatars, but with more focused communication. Just spitballing here.

>Good luck getting on a plane or booking a hotel reservation in 2022 without a smart phone. COVID covered that base for them.

Most people don't fly, so I fail to see how banning people who don't take the deadly vaccine from flights is going to do anything. Only way they could force people to is by cutting off food supplies, but everyone would just loot the hell out of the grocery stores or burn them down leading to a complete collapse/civil war.

I'd estimate a maximum of 40-60% would take it, and the bulk of that number is just because women + boomers in general are stupid and believe the television. But boomers are becoming increasingly irrelevant, as are women in the political context.

Meaning most of the (((deep state))) propaganda is aimed at women because they're the only ones dumb enough to fall for it. But a Jewish Bolshevik revolution repeat in America is not possible without going kinetic at some point, and all the propagandized women are useless in that case.

Or to sum things up, the fact is the Jews 100% doomed themselves starting around 9/11. Idiot boomers swallowed the lie, but a huge amount of people who were 18-35 or so at that time did not, and those people are now the mainstream that know all these state run media channels are fake. Trump just cemented the deal even further.

You need to study your history more. The french revolution was sparked when the french king, already a prisoner in all but name as his powers were stripped by parisian merchant lords, attempted to flee paris to rural france, and was caught and executed due to the risk he could pose if he had managed to unite the nation of france against the city of paris. The following revolution consisted of major buisnesses and merchant unions backing council members into leadership positions ans sparking more and more rebellions against the counter-rebellions until eventually the entire old blood that resisted the new merchant lords were dead.
